To whom it may concern

I am writing this as a personal recommendation letter for Shubhra Chaturvedi. I have known her for the last 6 years and closely seen her progress in the world of art through all these years. After spending many years in the corporate world, she left her job to follow her heart and passion — and the same can be seen in her paintings, photography and installations.

Shubhra's painting style is abstract. Color composition and texturing is her greatest strength. Her paintings are a reflection of her own personality, which shows sincerity and immense involvement in her work. Apart from painting, Shubhra is an excellent photographer. She has exhibited her work at various photography and paintings exhibitions. Recently I got a chance to see her photography/painting exhibition at the India Habitat Center's art gallery in Delhi.

There is another aspect about Shubhra that I want to mention — she is not only a painter and photographer, but she also a good writer. I have read her blogs, poems and articles. Her writing is very creative and sensible. She has covered many sensitive, political and current issues in her writing. Through these creative ventures, Shubhra is contributing directly and indirectly to society.

To summarize, I highly recommend Shubhra for any endeavor in the world of art that she may seek to pursue. Shubhra is a talented young woman and I wish her all the very best.

Sincerely,
